

[This page prints out on 1 sheet]

Your Teenager and Driving

When your deaf or hard-of-hearing teen becomes old enough to drive, he may want to get his driver's license. Make sure you tell him these things:

- Learning to drive is a big responsibility.
- Learning to drive can also be a challenge.
- Learning to drive may be a bigger challenge for a teen who is deaf or hard-of-hearing.

Remember this!

- What you need to do to get a driver's license is different in each State.
- This section only tells you what you might need to do to get a driver's license.
- To find out exactly what your teen needs to do to get a driver's license, contact your local Department of Motor Vehicles (<http://www.dmv.org/drivers-license.php>).

Keep reading

Read these pages to help your deaf or hard-of-hearing teen get his driver's license. Find out more about:

- Driver's Permit (<http://www.raisingdeafkids.org/growingup/teen/driving/permit.jsp>).
- Driver Education (<http://www.raisingdeafkids.org/growingup/teen/driving/education.jsp>).
- Driver's License (<http://www.raisingdeafkids.org/growingup/teen/driving/license.jsp>).
- Driving Safely (<http://www.raisingdeafkids.org/growingup/teen/driving/safety.jsp>).

Last updated: November 29, 2004

You can find this page online at:

<http://www.raisingdeafkids.org/growingup/teen/driving/index.jsp>